FINAL EXAMS & PAPERS: — Student members of the Seminary Conference last spring proposed, and the Faculty adopted, a new system for distribution of final examinations and term papers, to eliminate theft of good papers and provide privacy for grades and critiques. ID numbers were to be entered on examinations and papers; the Faculty were to deliver them to the Library; the Library would sort and distribute the materials at a specific time early in the third week of classes. The Faculty were reminded of this agreement at their December meeting.

Instead, examinations have been delivered helterskelter at the Circulation Desk, beginning last week. Loss of privacy was complete and repeated searches through bluebooks invited misfiled examinations. To avoid further frustration, papers and examinations have been removed. Those on hand any any delivered between now and the end of the second week of classes will be sorted by name and will be available, at the Circulation Desk, at specified times only, beginning the third week of classes.

I deeply regret the inconvenience for some and the fact that certain early birds did get their own examinations. I have written to the Faculty today (29 January). If anyone has a happier alternative to what I propose to do, please let me know.

James Lenox Librarian

Middle High German	Modern English
Zorn	Wrath
Neid	Envy
Hochfart	Pride
Tragkait	Sloth
Fressern	Gluttony
Unkeüschait	Lust
Geitzkat	Avarice

Does the illustration (left) depict a Seminary Faculty meeting, the budget committee for the Major Mission Fund, or perhaps a gathering of student government? Fortunately not! And yet, this anonymous late medieval German woodcut of the seven deadly sins does capture the powerful, ugly, alienating quality of our sin. Each of the beasts, the hare (wrath), goat (envy), eagle (pride), dog (sloth), dike (gluttony), doe (lust), and toad (avarice) holds a sword in hand to fight through the spiritual armor recommended in St. Paul's letter to the Ephesians. Medieval German woodcuts made use of this battle theme as well as the literary convention connecting animals with the seven deadly sins. The fourteenth century Viennese Carmelite, Mathias Farinator, in his encyclopedic treatise, Lumen animae, depicts the seven deadly sins (and seven virtues) in procession as armed messengers which were sent by Saul to David (I Samuel 19:14ff.) and in the chamberlains whom King Ahasuerus sent first to Vishti and then to Esther (Esther 1:10ff.). The above illustration parallels the battle theme and animal lore of the Lumen animae that symbolizes the deadly quality of the sins.

"THE LENT CALENDAR: "THE SEVEN DEADLY SINS TODAY"

Weeks of Lent	"Seven Deadlies"	Personal Sins	Corporate Sins
Feb. 29-March 2	Gluttony, Sloth	Sin of Overeating Sin of Sluggishness	World Hunger Apathy
March 5-9	Lust	Sin of abusing and exploiting human sexuality	The effects of a social sexist society on men and women
March 12-16	Envy, Avarice	Sins of affluence and competition	Unjust distribution of wealth on earth
March 19-23	SPRING BREAK
March 26-30	Wrath (Anger)	Sin of personal violation and violence	Sin of racism and oppression
April 2-6	Pride	Sin of elitism, denominationalism, hubris	National pride than enhances nuclear arms race

The Lent Calendar outlines the weekly themes that will guide and help focus our worship, our lenten study and prayer, and our observance of the Great Lent. The "bright sadness" of the Great Lent (better translated from the Russian, "Large Lent") forces upon us not a few formal obligations but rather opens our softened hearts to the realities of the spirit. In this way, we experience the hidden "thirst and hunger" for communion with God. Our sadness comes after discovering once more the seriousness of our sins. Little by little, throughout the journey of our lenten pilgrimmage, we understand our sadness is bright because the light and secret joy of the real presence of the Risen Lord. This time of anticipation and fulfillment culminates in the Paschal Vigil and Easter.

The seven deadly sins do not permit us to take our sins lightly. God's grace only can redeem our situation. In introducing this theme, the seven deadly sins, we are not dealing with a systematic analysis of sin, but rather, entering into the heart of the issue: exploring the structure and destruction of sin as it is present in the lives we lead. "Sin is whatever we do that violates our life in God," so states William F. May in A Catalogue of Sins.

Sin as a violation prevents us from seeing sin as human foible. Sinning against God prevents us from equating sin with moral evil. Says May, "Sin has to do with God. In each of the sins, a person acts in such a way as to make her or his relationship to God precarious, frightened, suspicion-laden, and deceitful." What is damaged is our participation in the life of God and our fellow humanity, not our attack in blindness or rebellion against the rules. Calvin's primary word for sin is infidelity. Sin is a betrayal of trust as in adultery or in lying that is distinct from our better understood notion of criminal.

The seven deadly sins does not suggest a hierarchy of sin, where one is worse than another but rather ways in which relationships are harmed. And it must be stated that we recognize sin as sin because of the effective presence of Jesus Christ. To look at sin is not to grovel and rent our garments, but rather to be honest with who we are. To fail to do this is to continue to fool and betray one's own self. Yet we can afford to look at ourselves without fear, covered as we are with the garments of Christ. Since God accepts us as we are, we do not need to fear letting our darkness be exposed to the light for in this discipline we receive health and salvation.

As a Seminary community, we will be looking at our sin and its effects in our own individual lives, the lives of our neighbors, and in the world both in its personal and corporate aspects. The Deacon Group will hold weekly prayer and study meetings, the Social Action Committee will coordinate a Thursday evening lecture series during Lent, and Chapel leaders are encouraged to articulate our lenten concerns before the community and in the presence of God through intercessory prayer. A host of other events will happen during Lent. The Committee for the Great Lent is responsible for coordinating the following student associations:

THE PASCHAL VIGIL - 1979

Saturday evening, April 14, AD 1979, is the night, which shines "as bright as the day." According to the Fathers, Psalm 139.12 refers to the eve of Pascha, the night of the Paschal Vigil. On Good Friday there was the darkness of midnight at noon. On the Paschal Night the glory of the splendor of noonday shines in the resurrected Christ. As "it was a night of Vigil by the Lord, to bring the people out of Egypt, so this same night becomes a night of Vigil kept to the Lord by all the people of Israel throughout all their generations" (Exodus 12.24). The night of the redemption of the new covenant fulfills the redemption of the old, and in the historic Paschal Vigil, the church, the new Israel, celebrates the story of redemption by re-membering, and by re-entering yet again the divine act of God and the mission to which we are called.

The Vigil as Story

The Paschal Vigil is a recital of our faith-story. The basic structure is historical, though the history is treated freely. The Vigil begins with the affirmation of Christ in whom all things were created, moves from creation to the fall and then to the first focal center, the Exodus. It then traces the story through the prophets and to the second focal center -- in the incarnation of our Lord. Christ's death - resurrection permeates the entire service as fulfillment and as promise. Through that power, and by the gift of the Spirit the Church takes flame and spreads throughout the world. We are a part of that flame as we are caught up in their witness and work, and as we share in the first-fruits of Christ's resurrection. For the promise is ours already, in Baptism and the victory in the kingdom.

The Vigil as Committment

The Vigil is a time for reassessment, for reconversion, for getting our bearings on our faith. Reading Paschal sermons from the early church, one gets the impression of stock-taking and of a deep entering into the demands of sacrifice and resurrection. Augustine says "let us be in harmony lest our lips testify against our conduct" (On Psalm 118.24). This day which the Lord has made is the Paschal day. And we celebrate it, knowing that it must judge all our days.

Come to the Vigil, and see if your life is consonant with the story of our faith.

And let that story of "the Day the Lord has made" make its impact upon you so that "you will be that day." (Augustine)

The new song is the song of the joy of salvation which is sung in the searching light of the resurrection. We are called upon to sing that song. Does your song touch the grandeur of what God has done? "Let not your life belie your words...Become yourself the glory that you sing of." (Augustine, Sermon 34 on Ps 149)

Again, Augustine speaks of our Alleluia when death is swallowed up in victory (I Cor 15.54) and that to shout Alleluia must mean that we bear in our bodies both the death and life of Christ. "Sing Alleluia and march" says Augustine. Receive the grace of Christ's death-resurrection, sing the Alleluia and then march, living the life of faithful obedience. Turn yet again. Be the Day, the new song, the Alleluia.

The Vigil as Church Act

The Paschal Vigil is the most historic act of worship in the Christian Church, celebrated from the first Christian centuries in both the East and the West. More than that, it connects us with our roots in Judaism, growing out of the Jewish Passover and in many ways, continuous with it.

It has even been associated with the covenant renewal occasions of the Old Testament, with the retelling of the story and the subsequent renewed commitment, "we will serve the Lord" (Joshua 24.15). Keeping the vigil is identity affirming. It sets us in the context of the church which is catholic and committed, the great cloud of witnesses who will not be made perfect apart from us (Hebrews 11.40). So, in the course of the Paschal Vigil, when Baptism is celebrated, it is into the immensity of the Church, and it is for faithful living as church in the world.

And when the Eucharistic Banquet is celebrated, it is the culmination of all history, the joining of heaven and earth, the fellowship of archangels and saints who proleptically participate in the Day of the Lord, sing the New Song and shout the Alleluias.

And this participation at the same time lays upon us the demand to become the glory and the faithfulness of which we sing.

The Theme: Out of Darkness into His Marvelous Light

There is a cascade of themes in the historic vigil: pilgrimage, the water of cleansing and deliverance, the bread (both of affliction and of heaven) and wine (both of suffering and of ennervation). the fire of purging and of enlightening, the tree of Eden and of eternity, life out of death, light out of darkness and all of the Christian reversals: the first being last, the least greatest, the dead living, etc.

This year we are seeking to focus on LIGHT, on the light of Christ, of God's word, of the glory of the resurrection and on our own response to the command to let our light shine.

Come to the light and be judged by it. And be ignited and enflamed to carry that light in your life.

The Schedule of the Vigil

The breakfast (break-fast of Lent) will be pot-luck and is to remind one of the Promise Land. Thus the bread and honey, wine and milk, the fatted calf (various meats) etc. Please bring food of $1.50 to $2.00 in value. Please bring food to the Campus Center before going to the Chapel for the service. There will be persons there to receive this food between 7.15 and 8.00.

Other Vigil Customs

Candles and bells are an important part of the service. Small candles will be available, but you may want to bring your own larger candle. If you bring small bells, please keep them in your pockets until the announcement of the resurrection.

It is customary to wear light-colored or white clothing to the Vigil, inasmuch as this is the celebration of Christ's victory over death and a foretaste of the glory of the Kingdom where all will be bright in his light.

We hope that you will be able to join us.

Program Agency's Health and Human Development Program. From 1968-73 he was secretary for Relief, Rehabilitation and Development in COEMAR; before that he served six years as administrative secretary for Interchurch Aid and Service to Refugees, WCC, in Geneva, Switzerland.

The program, created by the 187th General Assembly (1975), joins with other denominations and agencies in a concerted effort to end global hunger. A year-round program, it is designed to empower congregations and individuals to attack the crisis from several directions. Its five components are: direct food relief, development assistance, education and interpretation, life-style modification, and influencing public policy. It is funded by year-round contributions to the Hunger Fund (authorized by the 187th General Assembly, and by one-third of the undesignated receipts from the One Great Hour of Sharing offering in 1976. 30% of the Hunger Fund will be used to provide maximum amount of food relief in this country and abroad; 55 %, to increase support for projects in areas of agricultural assistance, health, population stabilization, etc., in this country and abroad; 15 percent, for hunger education and action.
